

Abstract of the Disclosure

Function of an equipment control apparatus is changed from outside of the equipment control apparatus by means of a communication method of higher security
5 than that of a monitoring system operating via a Web communication net: the equipment control apparatus being provided on the side of facility equipments constituting a power system and controlling the facility equipments; and the monitoring control apparatus being provided outside of the equipment control apparatus and obtaining internal information about the equipment control apparatus via the Web communication net to monitor a state of the power system 10 from the internal information.